ABSTRACT:

Organization Description: The University of Alaska-Anchorage comprises eight teaching units at the Main Campus and five community campuses. As the largest university in the state, the University of Alaska, Anchorage aims to inspire learning and enrich Alaska, the nation, and the world through their teaching, research, creativity, and service.

Use(s) of ACF Program Grant Funds: The University of Alaska, Anchorage, School of Social Work, Family Youth Services Training Academy will work in collaboration with the State of Alaska, Department of Health and Social Services, Office of Children Services to increase the number and qualifications of potential child welfare workers. This will be accomplished through the improvement of the MSW curriculum that will include a graduate course on cross-cultural issues in child welfare. Additionally, the current distance delivery student supervision program will be expanded. Both field experience and seminar components will be added for students in hub and small communities. The curriculum expansion will be evaluated to identify the competency level of trained individuals, and track staff retention over time.
